Press Release:

Lichtundfire is pleased to present and welcomes all to the Opening Reception for A WHITER SHADE OF PALE, an exhibition with work in various media that emphasizes the absence or reduction of color — while otherwise creating a richness in sensation for the viewer by way of concept, medium, materials and processes.

The reduction of the palette brings forward nuances of color — shades of white, grey or beige often overlooked when shown side by side a richer color palette.

We have become accustomed to the full spectrum especially in a more and more expansive digital world. We barely remember the times when, especially in the winter months of the northern hemisphere, colors became muted or hardly even existed in our natural environment. Now, with the effects of global warming — but also due to our widening visual and digital universe — for us humans, color is omnipresent 7/24/365.

We have not had a "break from the full spectrum" since having been exposed to the seemingly endless possibilities of color combinations in our surroundings provided by a variety of ubiquitous digital media as well as by scientific and technological advances in general.

The artists in the exhibition, deliberately chose a concept of expression reduced of color as a vehicle to convey what lies beneath or beside the demonstrative full spectrum — leading us away from what we are nowadays accustomed to and into the realm of a world of nuances, subtleties and the subconscious.
